Brand new to everything!

Posted by Newbie - 18 Nov 2012 21:50

So, I have a bixby 120? or 115? Not sure, I bought it off of Craigslist to experiment with. I am burning hardwood pellets for the past week. I have only had one problem besides an ignitor which failed and that is a huge amount of ash on top of the plate and hardly any ash in the ash pan. The top plate (?)which surrounds the top of the burn pot ends up being a mountain range of ash. Where do I start?

==========

Re: Brand new to everything!

Posted by Newbie - 23 Nov 2012 15:19

Ok, so plans for tomorrow. I am going to replace the feeder wheel gasket, clean the stove thoroughly, and replace the ingniters . Then I plan to follow the instructions on the Wiki to "dial in" the stove. A final set of questions before I start tomorrow. Everyone makes mention how the fire looks in the burn pot. How do I know what a correct fire looks like and how does everyone determine if the burn pot is overflowing? Are there any reference photos out there?

I hope everyone had a wonderful Turkey day and thank you for your support so far!

==========

Re: Brand new to everything!

Posted by rona - 23 Nov 2012 16:02

Look at your private messages then open it I sent you one with info you need.

==========